Do Not Buy Bitcoin

The smartest bitcoin investors are putting their money here instead.

Bitcoin ATMs have always been quite popular among cryptocurrency enthusiasts. With nearly 800 machines all over the world there is a growing demand – and supply – for easy access to Bitcoin. But when companies such as Deloitte unveil their own Bitcoin ATM, things are getting very interesting. After all, these devices are powered by Deloitte, by the look of things.

WHAT IS DELOITTE DOING WITH A BITCOIN ATM?

Despite all of that, the Bitcoin ATM in questions is “powered by Deloitte”. For now, it is anybody's guess as to what this means exactly, but it is possible the company issued their own user interface for this BitAccess device. Speaking of which, this is great publicity for BitAccess, as they compete against ATM manufacturers for market share right now.

The device in question was recently tested by C4 President Michael Perkins:

For now, it is anybody's guess as to what this means for Bitcoin in general. In a way, this is a clear vote of confidence for the future of this cryptocurrency. At the same time, it raises a lot of questions regarding Deloitte's plans with Bitcoin in the future. Perhaps this ATM is just a promotional stunt, or it could mean bigger things that remain shrouded in mystery for now.

Having such a machine located at the Deloitte offices in Toronto is a big step for Bitcoin in general. For now, it remains unknown as to whether or not users can both buy or sell cryptocurrency through this device. An interesting development that may spur a new wave of interest in cryptocurrency.
